

Independence Day Speech

Good morning respected teachers, honored guests, and my dear friends,

Today, we gather here to celebrate the spirit of freedom and to honor the sacrifices of those who fought for our independence. On this day, 15th August, we remember the journey that brought us to freedom and reflect on the responsibilities that come with it.

Seventy-seven years ago, on this very day in 1947, our country broke free from the chains of British rule, marking the dawn of a new era. But this freedom wasn't gifted to us. It was earned through the courage, resilience, and sacrifice of countless heroes who dreamed of a sovereign, self-reliant India. They came from all walks of life – farmers, teachers, soldiers, and students – bound together by a common vision for an independent nation. Figures like Mahatma Gandhi, Subhas Chandra Bose, Bhagat Singh, and Sardar Patel ignited the fire of patriotism in our hearts, and their legacy lives on in every corner of our country.
